This article will show you how you can make a lot of wow classic gold in Shadowlands. For all other tips on Shadowlands, which are especially valuable for beginners and returning players, you can take a look at our guide:

How to Make Gold in WoW by Running Old Raids

One of the easiest and best ways to make gold in WoW without too much effort is to run the old raids and mass vendor off all the low-level loot you obtain from the bosses. With decent gear at max level (around iLvl 197, which you can achieve through upgradeable covenant gear and world quest rewards), you can easily single-handedly smash through most of the raids from Classic up to Legion content.

Besides breaking up the monotony of spending all your time in the current expansion (especially as Patch 9.1 continues to linger months away), running old raids allows you to obtain multiple transmog appearances for your toons. After all, what's the point of being rich if you can't look amazing at the same time?

We recommend focusing on the raids from Mists of Pandaria, Warlords of Draenor, and Legion for higher profits.

Before we get into how to make your runs quicker and more efficient, we'll go over some of the caveats of the system to prevent inevitable confusion on why you can't run certain raids multiple times.

Farm materials

The act of simply farming raw materials is another incredibly easy way to get gold. You must have a level 50 or above character with both mining and herbalism to complete this. Additionally, you should have Flying for Shadowlands unlocked because it greatly improves the appeal and effectiveness of farming.

The pricing in your auction house should determine which of the four places you farm. Simply consider which minerals and plants are currently selling for the most money before deciding where you wish to gather.

The four areas include:

Bastion: Selenium Ore and Stair of Glory

Maldraxxus: Oxsein Ore and Marrowroot

Ardenweald: Phaedrum Ore and Watch Torch

Revendreth: Sinvyrerz and Widow's Blossom

Additionally, Laestritz Ore, Elethium Ore, Deathbloom, and Nightshade are present in every region. You may easily make between 30,000 and 60,000 gold each hour, depending on the realm. To mine plants and ores more quickly, make sure you have the Gathering of the Shadowlands enchantment on your hands.

As a level-alternative approach, this technique is also profitable. Because you can skill mining and herbalism, reach level 60 rapidly, and even enter the endgame with a small amount of flower inventory.

You can process herbs and ores and sell the finished product, such as potions or bottles, if you wish to put a bit more effort and time into your study and include other craftspeople as characters. However, you should determine whether the work is worthwhile in advance and don't discount the time aspect.

Use Azeroth Mount Farm Battle Method to Get Gold

With the release of Shadowlands, the item level has substantially boosted, and players can now abide by the Warfare for Azeroth creatures. This alludes to the fact that players can readily massacre creatures that must be killed hundreds of moments in a directive to accumulate the mounts attainable in BFA.

Learn this guide, we believe you can outshine many World of Warcraft gold farming guides and will help you get more gold than you have ever thought of making. But, of course, making plenty of gold requires dedication and hard work, so ensure you are prepared.
